COURSE CONTENT

Both clinical and analytical skills will be emphasized. During the year, this intensive program will offer you the opportunities to:

- Learn the basic DIR®/Floortime™ model. In addition to lectures and discussions we will: watch and analyze case material from Greenspan and Wieder's Training Tape Series as well as several other video segments from other sources.
- Learn the techniques of DIR®/Floortime™ and apply them to children ranging in age and developmental profile.
- Learn to use the ICDL Diagnostic Manual for Infants and Young Children (ICDL-DMIC) classification model.
- Describe, present and write up your own work. This includes presenting video of your work as well as written case analysis.
- Develop strategies to set up and support therapy teams, help parents set up a home program, and provide coaching and training for parents.
- Analyze case material and develop individualized profiles for a wide range of children.
- Consider topics around a wide range of issues including: engagement and communication issues with a broad range of children, developing and supporting intention and symbolic capacities, diagnostic issues, coaching challenges, school issues, group vs. individual therapy, biomedical issues, team formation and support, case management, reflective ability/mindfulness, family issues.

Participants

This course is designed for professionals who work with children with developmental disorders to learn the DIR®/Floortime™ model. Preference is given to licensed therapists (e.g. OT, PT, SLP, LCSW, psychologists, etc.), educators, and special educators working within the school system. Applications will also be considered for those who are earlier in their careers or those with less experience. Each participant will be asked to provide copies of their credentials and any liability coverage that they carry.

We require that participants, at a minimum, be able to work with children individually using the DIR®/Floortime™ model two to five hours weekly. We recognize that some participants will be working with children in settings that are not easily conducive to DIR® work. Because you have to work with children throughout the year, it may be necessary to find other contexts within which you can acquire this experience.

Participants will have to obtain releases to present their work to colleagues during the weekends. Participants should be experienced at videotaping their own work. You will be expected to be ready to present some work from the onset of the course. If you do not already have one, we will be able to offer some guidance regarding inexpensive video cameras (e.g. the FLIP camera).

Participants will receive feedback and support throughout the year about their strengths and challenge areas. At the end of the course, participants who have satisfactorily completed all aspects of the program will receive a Certificate of Completion (not a DIR® Certificate). For some, this will include a recommendation to be admitted to the DIR® Summer Institute at the “DIR-C” advanced level*. Others might need more training, or more experience before being ready to enter the DIR®/Institute at this advanced level. Registration assumes complete participation in all aspects of the course.

All participants will be required to attain and give copies of signed releases for any clients that they videotape and present in the class weekends.

All participants will be required to sign a Statement of Understanding indicating that completion of this course does not necessarily qualify them for claiming proficiency in DIR®/Floortime™ for practice.

*For information about the DIR® institute levels please refer to the ICDL website: (<http://www.icdl.com/dirInstitute/competency/index.shtml>).
